

JAPS MAKE TWO LANDINGS IN GUINEA; AUSTRALIA PREPARES FOR AIR ASSAULTS

MacArthur's Jap Foe, Disheartened, Took Own Life, U. S. Hears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—General Douglas MacArthur has received persistent reports, the War Department announced today, that the Japanese army commander in the Philippines has committed suicide because of the invaders' failure to overcome the American-Filipino defenders.

The reports "from various sources hitherto regarded as reliable," were detailed in a communique which said MacArthur's artillery on the Bataan fighting front had inflicted heavy losses on an enemy regiment in another surprise attack.

Guns firing from hidden positions destroyed 29 of 90 motor trucks which were moving an estimated 2,500 enemy troops to the front line north of Abucay.

Funeral Rites.

The reports concerning the Japanese commander, Lieutenant General Masaharu Homma, said he committed hara-kiri last month. While the reports lacked complete verification, it was said the funeral rites were held February 26 in Manila, with personal representatives of Emperor Hirohito in attendance, after which Homma's ashes were flown to Japan.

Ironically, the reports were that the suicide and funeral rites occurred in the Manila hotel suite occupied by MacArthur prior to the evacuation of Manila.

General Homma, commander of the Japanese 14th Army and commander-in-chief of all enemy forces in the occupied Philippines, was known as a fully Europeanized Japanese who learned to speak English fluently during service in London and India.

Military Record.

Born 54 years ago, he was an aviator with the British forces in France during the World War, was a Japanese resident officer in India in 1925, served as military attaché in London in 1930, and again was in London in 1937 for the coronation of King George as a member of the suite of Prince Chichibu, the emperor's brother.

The British decorated him with the Military Cross of the British Empire. General Homma, a bulky figure of characteristic Japanese army bearing, became notorious with Americans and British in 1939 when he commanded the Japanese at Tientsin, China, when the foreign concessions there were under blockade.

In 1941 the army sent him to Formosa to command the 14th Army, which, it has developed, was even then being put into shape for the Philippine invasion. Abucay, north of which MacArthur's artillery smashed the Japanese regiment, is about 22 miles north of the tip of the Bataan peninsula. The defenders' lines were moved forward about five miles in this area adjoining Manila Bay in the surprise offensive MacArthur's forces staged two weeks ago.

Jury Deadlocked In Payne Trial
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 8.—(P)—Judge Charles B. Staff dismissed at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon a Monroe circuit court jury which reported it was "hopelessly deadlocked" after deliberating for 48 hours in the trial of Caroline Payne, charged with slaying her one-time sweetheart, Charles O. Mattingly.

The jury received the case Friday evening.

Judge Staff summoned the jury to the courtroom after coming here from his home at Franklin, 45 miles away. The proceedings lasted only a few minutes. The judge asked if any single member of the jury believed a verdict could be reached. No one replied.

Moderately Cold Weather Forecast
Atlantans can expect moderately cold and windy weather today, and there is no prospect of further rain, the weatherman said in the midnight forecast.

Yesterday's temperature extremes were 51 and 59 degrees.

Private Shower Proves Its Power
A room with private entrance and private shower, on the north side, was rented before you could say Jack Robinson (who is that guy, anyway?) by a Want Ad in The Constitution the other morning. The party who placed the ad, obviously unacquainted with the speedy results obtainable through The Constitution, ordered the ad for a week—and cancelled it after one appearance.

Billion, Half In War Work Awarded South

More than one and a half billion dollars in major war and defense contracts have been awarded to the south during the six-month period, June through December, 1941, according to figures released yesterday by the War Production Board.

Contractors in the Sixth Federal Reserve District received direct awards totaling $1,555,386,000 in prime supply and facilities projects of the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission branches of the government. This sum did not include additional millions of dollars awarded the south for foodstuffs and subcontracts "farmed out" to southern firms by prime contractors from other Federal Reserve districts.

Facilities Projects.

Of the announced contract totals, $880,615,000 went into facilities projects while supply contracts accounted for $674,771,000 of the total sum.

Contract figures on a national basis for the same period amounted to approximately $1 billion dollars. Of this sum $9,520,602,000 went for facilities and $21,473,469,000 for supply contracts. The figures indicate that while two-thirds of the national total was spent for war material and supplies, more than half the money coming to the south went for projects of a fixed character.

Such projects, listed under the head of facilities, include Army, Navy, and Air Force, and new industrial plants and additions to plants financed by the War and Navy departments, the Defense Plant Corporation, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Supply contracts include aircraft and related equipment, ship production, conversion and repairing of all kinds. Contracts have been assigned to industrial areas on the basis of the location of the producing plants.

Contract Leader.

Heading the list in the value of contracts awarded plants in the Sixth Federal Reserve district was the Mobile-Pascagoula area in Alabama and Mississippi with $347,484,000. Here supply contracts loomed large in the district's total, $302,731,000, while awards for facilities were $44,753,000.

Next in dollar volume came the Chickasaw, Ala., area which received contracts amounting to $166,160,000 of which $40,725,000 was allocated to supplies while the sum for facility projects totaled $125,435,000. Several Army ordnance plants are located at Chickasaw and this area led the south in contracts awarded for the period ending last October.

The Chattanooga, Tenn., industrial area received $49,567,000 for facilities and $31,407,000 in supply contracts to make the third highest sum given a southern area, $80,974,000. Next came New Orleans where $37,367,000 went to supplies and $25,912,000 to projects to give the delta area a total of $63,279,000.

Other Awards.

Awards to other industrial centers are listed as follows:

Nashville, Tenn., area—Total, $420,300; supply $42,092,000; facilities, $438,000.

Muscle Shoals—Sheffield area—Total, $38,180,000. Supply, $2,638,000; facilities, $35,542,000.

Atlanta, Ga., area—Total, $27,911,000. Supply, $5,320,000; facilities, $22,591,000.

Birmingham, Ala., area—Total, $18,426,000; facilities, $16,812,000; supply, $1,614,000.

Knoxville, Tenn., area—Total, $7,179,000 for supply contracts. No awards for additional facility projects were given to Knoxville.

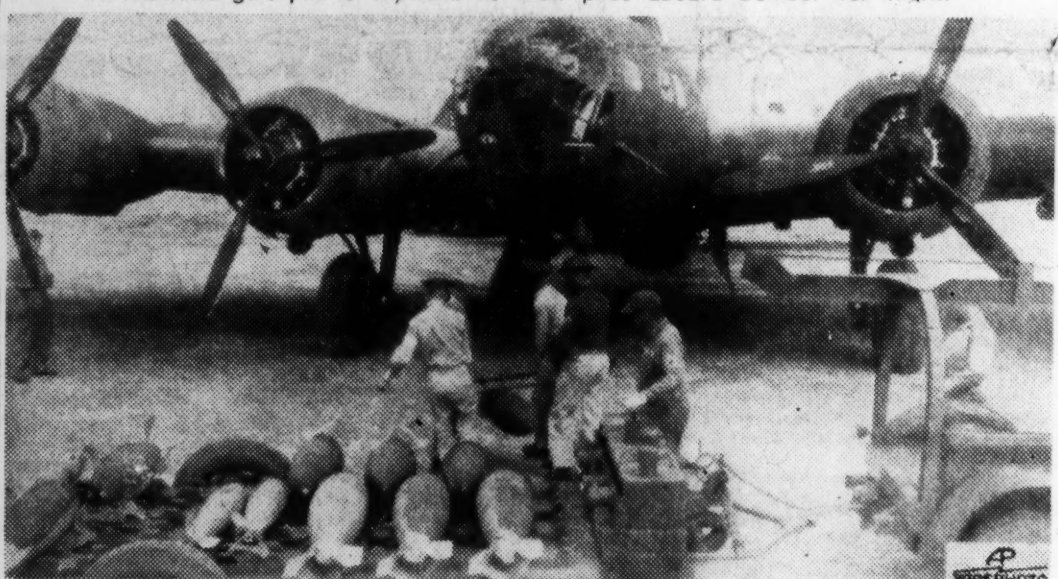

Other localities in the south received a total of $763,227,000 in government contracts for direct orders. Of this sum, $574,727,000 represented facilities projects while $188,500,000 was awarded on supply contracts in the Sixth Federal Reserve district.

Navy Seaplane Crash Fatal To 8; One Survives

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

SEATTLE, March 8.—A Naval lieutenant and seven enlisted men died in the crash of a Catalina bomber into the Columbia river at Tongue Point, Ore., today, the 13th Naval District headquarters reported.

The announcement said the ship nose-dived while attempting to take off from the water on a patrol mission. The navigator, Ensign H. R. Garrett, Fort Worth, Texas, was thrown clear and escaped.

Lieutenant (JG) Charles J. Reimann, Shelbyville, Ind., went down with the plane, which sank immediately. Salvage operations were under way.

Other casualties: Robert H. Bryant, aviation mechanic, first class, San Jose, Cal.

Marvin E. Crump, aviation machinist, second class, El Reno, Okla.

Ray S. Campbell, aviation radioman, third, T class, Portland, Oregon.

James B. Davis Jr., aviation radioman, second class, Allan, Okla.

Anthony Leszcz, ski, seaman, first class, 3020 West 40th street, Chicago.

Henry W. Strickland Jr., seaman, second class, box 224, Kentwood, La.

Army Plane Crew Of 8 Feared Lost
LANGLEY FIELD, Va., March 8.—(P)—A large Army plane from Langley Field has been missing on a routine training flight over the North Carolina coast since Thursday, and the Army public relations office said today its crew of eight was feared lost.

Colonel Edgar O. Hobbs, Langley Field public relations officer, said search for the plane was continuing and there was a possibility it had been forced down in an isolated section along the North Carolina coast or at sea, where its crew might have been picked up by a ship.

Hobbs did not disclose the type of the missing plane other than to say it was a "arge" one.

Langley Field has had no word from the plane since it left here at 11:08 a. m. (eastern war time) Thursday.

The next of kin of crew members have been notified that the plane is missing.

SHIFT IN RED ENVOYS.
BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), March 8.—(P)—A Tokyo dispatch quoted the Tokyo newspaper Hochi today as saying that the Russian ambassador to Tokyo, Constantin Smetanin, who is on a consultation trip to Moscow, would not return to his post, according to a reliable report.

Dual Invasion Points Only 400 Miles From Northern Mainland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 8.—Seven hours after landing their initial invasion of Australian-mandated New Guinea today the Japanese started a second landing attempt on the same island, only 400 miles from the nearest point of the northern Australian coast.

The first invaders occupied the island city of Salamaua, off southeastern New Guinea, at 2 a. m. and at 9 o'clock the second invasion fleet appeared off Lae, some 35 miles up the coast, under the protection of warships and bombing planes.

The bare announcement of the second operation was made without detail in dispatches from Port Moresby, 150 miles southwest of Salamaua. A brief government statement likewise gave no elaboration of the Salamaua landing.

The Japanese apparently struck in northeastern New Guinea to gain control of the airdrome at Salamaua as a base for possibly extended air attacks against Australia.

Japanese bombers repeatedly have attacked Port Moresby, 150 miles southwest of Salamaua and the southern coastal city, which the Australians consider the best defensive base in New Guinea against the Japanese.

Salamaua is a small island settlement separated from the New Guinea mainland by a narrow channel. Its airdrome in peacetime is used principally by commercial companies flying in and out of the gold mining regions of New Guinea. Salamaua has a small harbor, but is not considered a port except for coastwise shipping.

The town is confined to one main street. The population is small and the entire district of Morobe, in northeastern New Guinea, has only 3,500 persons.

Australia braced for eventual attack with hurried military preparations designed to take the offensive against Japanese thrusts.

Major General Gordon Bennett, former commander of Australian forces in Malaya, who escaped after the fall of Singapore, told his countrymen in a broadcast, "We must adopt the offensive, not only with the forces, but with the whole people."

"The Australian imperial force beat the Japanese in Malaya every time when the Australians took the offensive, and we could do the same here," he said.

Bennett predicted the Japanese would first try to capture air bases in northern and northwestern Australia and then drive southward from airdrome to airdrome.

But, he added, the Japanese would not find stores of food and sufficient water in northern Australia. He urged Australia to insist on adequate air support.

Axis Says Java 'Surrendered'; Dutch Deny It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, March 8.—Admittedly hard-pressed and beleaguered, the defenders of Java were cut off from contact with the world for the second day today while Axis agencies broadcast a bewildering assortment of elusive unofficial reports of their surrender which the Netherlands government here emphatically denied.

The statement of the Netherlands government admitted, however, that it was without direct word from its forces in the Netherlands East Indies.

"The Royal Netherlands government emphatically denies stories emanating from enemy sources to the effect that Japan has been asked for armistice terms," the statement issued here through the Netherlands government information bureau.

"As the Japanese have at present full control of all channels of communication with the Netherlands East Indies, it is to be expected that similar stories will be put out by various enemy quarters for the purpose of creating confusion. No credence should be attached to any of them."

British Without Word.
The British war office, too, was without word from British troops fighting in Java since 12:55 p. m. 7:55 a. m. eastern war time Saturday, when the official Java radio at Bandoeng signed off a farewell message: "Goodbye till better times. Long live the Queen."

Anxious Dutch, however, relied upon some of the hidden low-power radio stations—long prepared in the mountain defenses of the island for just such a contingency as the present—eventually to be heard in Australia.

"The 'no surrender' order was given to our forces in Java and it is generally being carried out," said Dutch sources.

"Here and there a local com-

Convoy Report Passed by U. S., Editor Claims

LONDON, March 8.—(P)—The editor of the London Daily Mail issued a statement today declaring it "inconceivable" that its dispatch of Saturday telling of the movement of "great convoys" of American troops and equipment in the Pacific "should not have passed through United States naval censorship."

The statement, given out by Editor Robert J. Prew, follows: "Statements made by United States naval officials in connection with the cable sent by our correspondent, Walter Farr, from a United States convoy at sea and which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Daily Mail are clearly based on lack of knowledge of the facts."

Convoy Story Filed From Honolulu

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—The Navy reported today that a London Daily Mail dispatch telling of American-Japanese naval fighting and the movement of American convoys to Australia was dispatched from Honolulu, rather than from a ship at sea, as its headline indicated.

Reporting the results of an investigation into the dispatch, the Navy said:

"Further analysis of the story in the light of now known circumstances suggests that it contains no factual information about movements to Australia which had not been published by the American press prior to the London Daily Mail publication."

New Limitations Put On Credit Purchases

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—April 1, provides an optional basis for determining the credit value of a used automobile. The maximum credit value must be the lower of two figures—the actual purchase price or the "appraisal guide value" plus taxes. Thus, where the appraised value exceeds the purchase price, the down payment might be more than the one-third normally required.

The initial installment buying regulations went into effect last September 1 and have been tightened on two previous occasions.

Germany's Casualties Placed at 1,500,000
BERN, Switzerland, March 8.—(P)—The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper La Suisse said today that German military circles estimate that 1,500,000 German soldiers have been killed, wounded or counted as missing since the start of the war against Russia on June 22.

British Bomb Paris Factory In Day Attack

LONDON, March 8.—(P)—Smashing at German industries in the Paris region for the second time in six days, the RAF bombed a motor truck factory at Poissy this afternoon and heavily attacked other industrial targets in occupied northern France.

The Air Ministry announced that bombs fell squarely on the Matford plant at Poissy, eight miles west of Paris, where the British said 20 trucks had been turned out daily for the Nazi war machine. Hits also were scored on an adjoining truck yard.

Participating pilots said that Frenchmen waved cheerful greetings from many villages they passed over en route to Poissy.

They found the plant easily in the bright sunlight and one rear gunner related that flames and dust from explosions shot higher than the altitude of his plane. Not a German fighter rose to the challenge, the pilots said, until the British had unloaded their bombs and were on their way home. And then only three Messerschmitts took out after them.

The daylight attack followed the destructive, two-hour attack upon factories along the Seine in the Paris industrial belt last Tuesday night when the French at Vichy said, 325 persons were killed.

It fulfilled the promise by "Colonel Britton," the mystery voice of the "V-for-Victory Campaign," who warned Frenchmen last Friday "The Royal Air Force is coming again more and more often."

Mexico Pours Troops Into Strategic Posts

By WILLIAM D. PATTERSON.
NAVAL BASE, MAGDALENA BAY, Lower California, March 8.—(P)—Mexican troops and fighting material are streaming constantly into strategic posts on the west coast guarding the United States left flank, and General Lazaro Cardenas, the commander-in-chief in this vital area, declared today Mexico would make the utmost sacrifice to help b at the Axis powers.

In a reconnaissance flight the length of this peninsula south of California, I saw emphatic proof that the Mexican army and navy forces are keeping a careful watch and are ready for any fight that comes.

Well-armed forces in high spirits are stationed at all points from Ensenada to this important harbor, guarding the maritime highways stretches where a Japanese expeditionary force might possibly land. The navy is patrolling closely. The marine and air force also are active.

In the two east-west crossings of Lower California, nothing suspicious was seen nor a single inch of ground where the enemy could take foot.

Cardenas, President of Mexico until last year, said any Axis attempt to invade the United States through Mexico would meet the resistance of a united nation, ready or any event, and the force of United States arms as well.

The power of the intact American fleet," Cardenas added, made the possibility of an invasion "impossible, but he forecast a hard struggle in Asia."

'It's Terrible,' Athlete Asserts, Holding Breath 20 Minutes

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., March 8.—(P)—A Wesleyan University athlete held his breath for 20 minutes, five seconds and lived to tell the world that it's "terrible."

Eugene J. Frechette Jr., of New Haven, who one day hopes to be a physician, did it in the interest of science, but the performance won him—Wesleyan scientists claimed—the world's breath-holding championship and a steak dinner.

"You feel like you're dying," said Frechette, a junior, after he had beaten the previous mark of 16 minutes, 23 seconds set a year ago by a fellow student, J. Edward Burns, of Wethersfield.

Among other sensations he experienced, the new 20-year-old champion said, were "hard poundings inside my head."

Witnesses said Frechette's complexion became flushed and later purple. Perspiration oozed from his face.

The slim, dark-haired Frechette, who is nearly six feet tall and weighs 165 pounds, went through it all in a laboratory test to demonstrate the capacity of human endurance and prove reflex action eventually will force a person to breathe even against his wish.

Before the timekeeper swung into action, Frechette breathed deeply for three minutes and then inhaled three deep breaths of pure oxygen. After that, without any further special chemical aid, he sat quietly for his record-breaking performance.

Even before he stopped breathing, Frechette, varsity half-miler, knew he would have to go some to dethrone the champion. Shortly before, Burns, now a graduate student, had exceeded his own mark of last year by 26 seconds.

The steak dinner? That was provided by Dr. Ross A. Gortner Jr., biology instructor. He had offered it to anyone who topped Burns' 1941 mark.

Church Group Will Hear Talk By Barnwell

75 Delegates From 15 Dioceses Expected To Attend Meeting.

The Right Reverend Middleton S. Barnwell, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia, will be the principal speaker Thursday at the opening of a two-day Episcopal church conference on Christian social relations at the Biltmore hotel. Bishop Barnwell, Bishop William Mercer Green, Mississippi, and Mrs. J. D. Ames, of the interracial committee of Atlanta, will discuss "The Church and the Negro."

Rev. Clifford L. Samuelson, assistant secretary of the Department of Domestic Missions for the National Council, will speak on "Social Problems of Rural America."

About 75 delegates from the 15 dioceses of the nine southern states are expected to attend the conference, whose general theme will be Christian social relations. Bishop Green will preside and Dr. Theodore S. Will, rector of All Saints church, will welcome the visitors.

Bishop Barnwell has long been a prominent and somewhat picturesque figure in the Episcopal church. Beginning in 1925, he became missionary bishop of Idaho, when he covered a diocese of 84,000 square miles by automobile, on horseback and on foot, regardless of weather. One result of his work is the new St. Luke's hospital at Boise, Idaho. He was made bishop-coadjutor of the Georgia diocese in 1935 and became bishop upon the death of Bishop Frederick F. Reese.

Senate Group Starts Probe Of 'Sea Otters'

Seek Information on Tests Given Once-Heralded Cargo Vessel.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(P)—A group of senators, unconvinced by the "sea otter" is impractical, has launched an inquiry into what tests were given this revolutionary-type small cargo vessel once heralded as the answer to submarine warfare.

Chairman Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, disclosed today a three-man Senate Naval Subcommittee already had heard numerous shipping experts in closed-door testimony and said the group would "develop all the facts before we get through."

Secretary of Navy Knox told a recent press conference that tests of a sea-otter type ship had proved "very disappointing" to both President Roosevelt and himself, and indicated the idea of mass production of them had been abandoned.

Last September, the Navy had reported enthusiastically on the possibilities of this type of ship, saying tests of a small-scale model indicated "success is virtually a foregone conclusion."

The design, as reported by the Navy, was for a ship 250 feet long of about 1,500 tons driven by 16 gasoline engines geared to a vertical shaft turning a six-foot propeller located amidships.

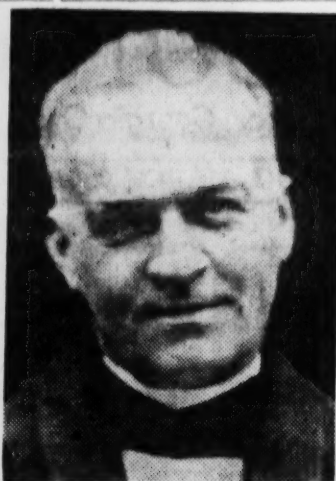

Of low silhouette, the ships would be difficult for submarines to sight and the word was they could be built so cheaply they could be sent to England with a cargo and then scrapped. A government corporation was projected to turn them out by the hundreds.

Air Base Seaman Is Arrested Again

R. W. Casto, 21, seaman at the Naval Reserve Air Base, who allegedly was beaten weeks ago by Patrolman W. F. Stevens, causing the latter's trial and suspension from the Atlanta police force for 30 days, was back in the clutches of the law last night.

He was arrested by Patrolmen E. L. Sikes and W. D. Anderson at a restaurant on West Peachtree street on charges of disorderly conduct and causing a disturbance.

The officers said he gave no trouble when arrested.

SPEAKER—Bishop Middleton S. Barnwell will be principal speaker Thursday at an Episcopal church conference on Christian social relations at the Biltmore.

Make Fewer Calls at Night, Doctor Pleads

Take Ailments to Office, Norfolk Speaker Tells Clinic Here.

Don't call your doctor for every slight ache or pain.

If you must see a physician, go to his office, if possible, rather than calling him to your home.

And keep yourself fit by getting the proper amount of sleep and the right kind of food—at least during the emergency.

That was the advice given yesterday by Dr. Julian L. Rawls, of Norfolk, Va., who spoke in the first of a series of lecture clinics providing medical information for laymen in time of war, at the Academy of Medicine, under auspices of the Fulton County Medical Society.

Shortage of Doctors.

A severe shortage of doctors both for the armed forces and for the civilian population, makes it necessary that civilians co-operate by conserving the energy and time of physicians so those at home can properly administer to all patients who are really in need of treatment.

"Take your ailments to the doctor if you possibly can, rather than calling him to see you," he said. "A physician can see half a dozen patients in his office in the length of time it takes to see one at home. Be sure night calls are really emergencies."

Most Can Wait.

"I wonder if you realize that 75 per cent of calls made on a physician at night are not necessary and could easily wait until morning without injury to the patient?" "There is nothing that disturbs the morale of your physician or weakens down his ability to work more than continuous and repeated night calls."

Dr. Rawls estimated soon there probably will be about one physician, on the average, to 1,500 civilians. In some rural communities the ratio will probably be as low as one to 2,500, he said.

Dr. Paulin Speaks.

Dr. James E. Paulin, of Atlanta, president of the American College of Physicians, addressed the meeting, declaring that in the future people will have to reorganize their concept of medical care and that the medical profession will have to establish large mass clinics where specialists and general physicians can care for large numbers of people in the shortest possible time.

Another speaker was Colonel Sanford W. French, of the Fourth Corps Area Medical Corps, who talked on medical care for soldiers.

8 Navy Planes, Reported Missing, Land Safely

TUCSON, Ariz., March 8.—(P)—Eight Navy planes reported missing while en route to San Diego, Cal., have been accounted for, the Davis-Monthan Army air base reported today.

A spokesman said the planes ran out of gasoline, but that their pilots landed them safely. Some of the group were understood to have been forced down below the Mexican border.

The pilot of a ninth ship, who landed at the Douglas airport, reported last night the eight were missing.

1,000 Doctors To Convene for 3-Day Meeting

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, To Talk.

More than 1,000 surgeons will assemble today at the Biltmore hotel to open the three-day Southeastern Surgical Congress, with the effect of the war on surgery as the chief topic for discussion.

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, will be a featured speaker at this afternoon's session. Another principle talk will be delivered by Colonel Leonard C. Rountree, of Washington, medical officer with selective service headquarters, whose subject is "How the Medical Profession Can Augment the National Efficiency During War Time."

In connection with the Congress, the Atlanta Theater Guild will give a dramatization of the life of Dr. Crawford W. Long, Georgia surgeon, who 100 years ago discovered the use of ether as an anesthetic. The pageant will be presented at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Other speakers include: Dr. Fred Rankin, of Lexington, Ky., president-elect; Colonel Sanford W. French, Dr. George Baehr, of Washington, and Dr. Russell M. Wilder, of the famous Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. B. T. Beasley, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer of the Congress, is in charge of the program.

Length of War Is Up to Public, Landon Warns

Spartan Existence To Win War Demanded by G. O. P. Leader.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—(P)—Alfred Landon said today "it is for the American people to decide how long this war shall last."

"Because we have the magnificent resources and man power, the mass production machinery, and the men who know how to use it, the war's duration depends on how thoroughly and how completely we go at it from now on," he asserted in a speech prepared for a Blue network broadcast.

"We can make it a long war by muddling along. We can divert our energies and our thoughts by a lot of extraneous issues that may be vital but are insignificant to the one stark naked issue confronting us, of safeguarding our own lives."

"The 1936 Republican presidential nominee indicated there still were matters on which he differed with President Roosevelt. At one point he said: 'We must immediately and forthwith accept willingly, for the sake of victory, a Spartan existence. I do not agree with the President that the American people need amusement.'"

At another place: "Vigilant observers are united in the need of a unified command under the President with the aid of a general staff. That means the President must refrain from planning the war strategy, which he could not possibly understand."

Man Attempts Suicide After Army Rejection

Despondent because he was rejected from service in the Army, a young man listed as Norman King, 25, of 591 Ponce de Leon avenue, swallowed a quantity of poison Saturday night, Radio Patrolmen W. A. Goode and W. J. Stephens reported yesterday.

The young man was found in his bedroom by his mother. He was taken to Grady hospital, where his condition last night was described as serious. His mother told police he had been called for selective service recently.

Dutch Deny Java Surrendered

mander may have been obliged to yield in order to avoid outright useless slaughter, but in the main we are hanging on," it was said.

It was recalled that the "no surrender" order specifically called upon Dutch troops to fight on, even if cut off, an order which generally was interpreted as pre-saging guerrilla warfare if the main centers of Dutch resistance are overrun.

Other Dutch sources said the last information indicated that some protracted resistance would be possible in certain areas of Java, although they were now unwilling to predict another stand like General MacArthur's in Bataan in the Philippines.

"Conditions are not the same," these sources remarked.

The Axis reports were roundabout and without any express official sanction from Tokyo, and apparently were a copy of the German technique of planting "news" with agencies abroad and then picking it up for rebroadcast on the home facilities.

They said that the Dutch, backbone of the United Nations resistance in the N. E. I., had capitulated in Java, the last main bulwark of the defense, and had asked for terms and cessation of hostilities on all fronts, as one report had it.

The Japanese answer was said not yet to have been known. The British war office said it had received no confirmation of the sweeping Axis claims, but a commentator acknowledged that the Allied position in the N. E. I. was "very serious."

PAGEANT ON DR. LONG'S LIFE—The story of Dr. Crawford W. Long, the Georgia surgeon who discovered the use of ether as an anesthetic, will be depicted in a pageant by the Atlanta Theater Guild at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Atlanta Woman's Club for the Southeastern Surgical Congress. The pageant commemorates the 100th anniversary of Dr. Long's discovery. Shown, left to right, foreground, are Dr. Frank L. Belyeu (as Long) and Christine Carmichael (Mrs. Long); background, George T. Gordon Menzies said "attack is the only way in which the Allies will be victorious."

"We shall find unity and cohesion when we co-operate for a great attack on our foes," he added.

All Australia is preparing for war, but the degree of readiness exhibited by her cities seems to depend somewhat on their relative distances from the Dutch East Indies.

An aerial survey of Australia's major west coast cities has convinced me that those in the south are far less war-conscious than those in the north.

In Brisbane, for example, I found sandbags and trenches everywhere. Most store windows were taped or boarded up. In Sydney and Canberra there is less of such activity, while there is hardly a taped window in Melbourne.

As one goes south the blackout fades into a so-called "brownout," with faint street lights and dimmers on automobile and street car headlights, but officials say that be bombed from captured bases in the north," he said. "Our planes must be superior in quality and number to the enemy."

"Defensive spirit develops a retreat complex. I have seen responsible officers in Malaysia asking when a retreat will be made even before they have dug into their positions. . . . It is not the size of the dogfight that matters—it is the size of the fight in the dog."

In a similar appeal for action, former Prime Minister Robert Menzies said that the complete blackout, have been made.

There are signs everywhere of the nearness of war, yet life is strangely unchanged.

The theaters draw crowds, stores are busy and hotels are so jammed that many serve meals only to their guests, who occasionally wait an hour for service. Food is plentiful and liquor cheap, but bars close at 8 p. m.

The hotel labor shortage is so acute that old men and small boys are filling in as waiters and porters.

Women are serving as street car conductors and truck drivers, and few men of military age are in civilian dress.

Gasoline rationing has made the greatest impact upon most civilians. Rations of two to four gallons a month have driven most of the automobiles from the highways, with the result that the Melbourne interurban station, long boasted as one of the world's busiest, now has a rush hour comparable to a New York subway jam.

Many motorists have installed bulky charcoal burning gas producers, which reduce power and necessitate racing the engine, but do save gasoline.

Cigarettes and matches are expensive and are being rationed. Many women are rolling their own.

Fruits and dairy products are plentiful, but there is a shortage of blankets and shoeleather. Shortage in beef is anticipated, but mutton is cheaper than it has been in years.

Production of luxury goods is prohibited. It is illegal to manufacture washing machines and vacuum cleaners. Production of refrigerators is being limited to the minimum required to fill hospital and army needs.

The public seems to take bad news with the same detachment as would a reader in California, and there is little evidence of fear.

FOR WAR ECONOMY
Let MONCRIEF
Put YOUR Furnace in Shape for the Duration

It is today of vital importance that your home be kept in good repair for wartime economy. The war has already greatly decreased home building and suitable dwellings are now much in demand. Even though WPB order L-31 stopped the sale of gas furnaces February 28th, you can still get coal heating equipment to keep your home warm and comfortable. If your furnace is old or does not heat properly, it should be checked at once so that the necessary repairs or adjustments can be made to assure economical heat for the duration. Repair parts or replacements are now available for immediate delivery or for Spring installation on Moncrief's lay-away plan. Call today for a free check on your heating system.

Russian Gains

While there is a wise tendency in this country and in Britain not to exaggerate the importance of Russian successes against the common German enemy, there can be no denial that the winter campaign in the east has cost the Nazis heavily. It is not quite a fair measure to count only the territory regained by the Russian offensive, which is, so far, far short of driving the Germans out of all the areas they swept over in the early months of their attack on the Soviet.

In the final analysis it is probable the greatest result of the winter campaign in western Russia will be revealed as the losses in manpower and equipment the Germans have suffered. After all, the object of the Allied Nations must be, primarily, to destroy the striking power of the enemy. Once that is done recovery of ground lost will be comparatively simple.

Russian reports of the number of Germans killed, wounded or captured sound unbelievable. Recently Soviet sources have declared the Germans have lost 6,000,000 men since the first attack on Russia. This is a tremendous figure but, even allowing for utmost in exaggeration, there can be no doubt the Nazi armies have been terribly stricken.

Corroborative facts, however, are now coming to light. An entire German division, which had been prepared and held in reserve for the coming spring offensive, has been thrown into the fighting around Staraya Russa. It has suffered heavy losses. Germans, lacking adequate antitank defenses, have tried to use piles of snow, covered with ice. German retreat from the town of Yuhnov, an important point recently captured by the Russians, was so precipitate they abandoned their wounded and failed in an effort to destroy great stores of munitions they were forced to abandon.

These and other reports, which there is no reason to doubt, corroborate Russian claims of the heavy toll they have taken, and are taking, of the Nazi-led forces.

It is too early to allow elation over German reverses to raise hopes too high. Yet we can take encouragement at the successes of the Russians and know that the foe is not invincible and that the day when we shall have him on the defensive altogether may not be as distant as we have thought.

When the defendants, Blum and Daladier, spoke out against "the real betrayers of France," the court at Riom was agitated, as a hasty examination reveals no such sequence in the scenario.

—WORK AND SAVE FOR VICTORY—

They Put Their Nation Second

A small group of caulkers, working at San Diego shipyards, have placed the interests and the safety of their nation second to their own labor union desires. Despite the fact that the vessel they were working on was urgently required for naval service, these men quit their jobs because the shipyard refused to increase their rate of pay from $1.12 1-2 per hour to the $1.37 1-2 demanded.

Fortunately the Navy itself was able to send in 24 experienced caulkers to take the place of those who quit their posts, so the immediate urgency for the vessel under construction was met.

The caulkers are affiliated with the AFL Carpenters' Union and that union has, through its district secretary, said the wage demands were not authorized and added that, while the organization could not force the caulkers to work, it could and would supply others.

At the same time the business agent for the caulkers' union said they were seeking, primarily, recognition as a separate organization from the carpenters. He added that the men who quit their work had found work at another shipyard at the advanced wage scale they demanded.

Whatever the reason for the walkout, whatever the motive behind the men who quit their vital defense jobs, the fact remains incontrovertible that they put their own interests and that of their union ahead of their duty to their nation in time of crisis.

It is of such thinking and such actions that defeat is formed, it is on such things that Hitler counts for collapse of each nation he attacks.

One More Week

There is, approximately, one more week before the deadline for the payment of the first quarterly installment of federal income tax for this year. Midnight of March 15, is normally the deadline but, because that date falls this year on a Sunday, the time is extended to midnight on Monday, March 16.

More than 6,000,000 Americans are, this year, filing their first income tax returns. An equal number will, for the first time, make their first payments to the government under this tax.

The exemption rates have been lowered and the result is that these added millions have been called upon to file returns for the first time.

Never before has the government needed money so urgently. It is for the prosecution of the war. Citizens as a whole are paying their taxes gladly and cheerfully. Henry Morgenthau Jr., secretary of the treasury, in a recent letter states that all reports from all collection districts show a new spirit pervading the nation's taxpayers. It is, today, a privilege as well as an obligation to give all that Uncle Sam asks for the preservation of America.

When the books are closed in the offices of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Atlanta district, at midnight of March 16, it would be a proud record if it could truthfully be said there is not a single delinquent in this area. It could be done.

There is, too, another need for prompt payment of the tax. That is the same need that is calling from the entire world for quick help in the fight against the Axis foes. Just as a bombing plane at the scene of battle today is worth ten next year, so a dollar paid today is worth more than one paid later. This should be sufficient reason to impel every taxpayer not to delay a day he can help in making his contribution to the war chest. Likewise, the man or woman who can pay the year's taxes in full, now, should do so instead of taking advantage of the quarterly payment privilege.

Ordered To Shoot

Naval sentries posted on the water fronts of the harbors and ports of this country have been ordered to shoot to kill if regulations governing approach to these areas are not obeyed. This order was given emphasis at San Francisco recently when a shot was fired through the windshield of a taxicab because the driver failed to turn off his headlights when approaching a pier, as ordered on posted signs. No one was injured, however.

This is important. There is no more vital area requiring complete guard in war time than the ports through which our supplies and armed forces must flow. Such ports, if they were left vulnerable, would be ideal spots for the activities of saboteurs or enemy agents.

If civilian casualties result from the order of "shoot to kill," no one will be to blame save the victims who violated regulations. It is probable, as the war progresses, that similar orders will be given to sentries at all military areas, at all war production plants and at all points important to the nation's war effort. In fact it is probable that the same order has already been issued for most of these points.

It behooves everyone, whether driving or afoot, to approach every such area with utmost caution and to see that all regulations and orders are obeyed promptly and meticulously. There is no desire to kill innocent persons, but if any such are slain because of their refusal to heed commands their deaths, while regrettable, will be their own fault.

Georgia Editors Say:

GLOVES OFF
(From The Lowndes County News.)
The authorities in this country have through the years conducted its trials, investigations and sentences with due regard for the comfort, liberty and life of those under its jurisdiction. We believe it is now time for United States justice to take its gloves off and keep more in mind the comfort, liberty and lives of American citizens.

This is now war, the cards are on the table, and it is the survival of our country or our enemies. We believe the time has past when any consideration should be shown our enemies. We believe a few given a good old-time hanging, a few more shot for sabotage instead of sentences, would stop some of it, and as for those who through carelessness destroy such valuable things as the Normandie a few shootings would work wonders.

We are losing patience with our enemies and believe we should go back to the old admonition of a tooth for a tooth. If the destructive horde of aliens are not destroyed, then they will destroy us, instead of a tooth for a tooth, they will do as they are doing in Europe, shoot thirty for one.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

THE COMING MONTHS WASHINGTON, March 8.—Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of war developments coming within the next few months.

All of our officials—those in positions of responsibility with relation to the war effort—look for the struggle to break anew with greater intensity than anything yet seen. What happens may easily determine the outcome of the war. Certainly it promises to have a profound bearing on the duration of the conflict.

Revelations brought to public attention in connection with the British bombing of French industrial plants on the outskirts of Paris show that Hitler has not been idle during the winter months. He has converted the factories in occupied areas of Europe into war production plants, turning out tanks and planes and guns for the spring offensive he is certain to make.

The evidence is that he has ransacked the conquered nations of Europe for labor and materials to augment sources of military production in the Axis countries. The British knew all of this. That is why they were forced to the unhappy decision of bombing a former ally in the war.

In leaving the Paris industrial area unprotected by anti-aircraft guns or fighter planes Hitler was taking advantage of an obvious British reluctance to bomb the plants for fear of antagonizing the Vichy government, which already was giving a close degree of collaboration to the Nazis. But there was nothing else to be done. The same thing will have to be undertaken in other over-run countries whose industrial machinery has been converted to Axis use, friendly though the people themselves may be to the Allied cause. It is one of the tragic consequences of war.

LAST AXIS HOPE Hitler and his Axis partners will be forced to make their last supreme effort for victory this year from the realization that in the long run they must otherwise fail. Knowing full well the enormous industrial power of the United States and the war production program we have launched to mobilize this strength, they must act before our force is developed.

What we are capable of doing alone, not counting the facilities of the Russians and the British, is more than equal to the combined resources of the three Axis nations, plus those of the occupied countries as well.

But it will take a year or two years for this potential American power to be harnessed to war production completely. What happens in the meantime will determine the course of future events. Hitler must strike with all of his force to try to gain an advantage while conditions favor his cause.

But if we have this extremely crucial period to pass through a certain consolation is offered in the thought that if the Axis make their final supreme effort and fail, then the end is closer in view. It is not beyond the realm of realities that if the scheduled drive fails the whole Axis effort will collapse in terror of the shadow of American future strength.

The last war ended this quickly. It is the only hopeful possibility to cling to in contemplating the dreadful events that lie immediately ahead.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The War Of The Mind.
There is an organization known as "American Defense—Harvard Group" which has been working for many months past sending out articles of high informative value on the world and the coming war. This group has been valuable in teaching the Americans the truth and it is not ceasing its good work now we are at war.

In a recent issue put out by this group asks three pertinent questions. "Where do we stand?" "Where do we go from here?" and "What can we do to win the war?" Under the first of these headings it is pointed out that in order to give our forces in the field the kind of support necessary for victory we must fight the war of the mind along with the war of steel.

"In particular," says the release, "it is important to watch for symptoms of obstructionism whenever and wherever they appear. Already evidences of this spirit are beginning to show themselves."

It is evident that the group—quite correctly—recognizes as internal foes of this nation any individuals, be they Americans or not, who aids the enemy by repeating or spreading remarks tending to disunity. Among such remarks the group lists the following:

"If we hadn't meddled in foreign affairs, we wouldn't be in the war."

"Anyway only Japan attacked us; let's forget about Hitler."

"The reason we aren't prepared now is that we gave our armaments away through the Lend-Lease Act."

"We haven't anything to get out of the Orient anyway; let's bring our Navy back to protect the shores of California and Massachusetts."

"The government is taking all of the profits of private industry; we're going totalitarian ourselves."

"Labor is profiteering while the soldiers are dying."

"Farmers are keeping their prices up to make hay while the world burns."

"All our troubles are due to the Republican (or Democratic) party."

"If Russia beats the Germans, the reds will turn on us."

"England will fight to the last American."

"These defeats are just what I have been predicting all along."

And, adds the group:

This is only the beginning. Symptoms of obstructionism are bound to increase unless we stamp them out. Rumors will be planted here by the enemy. Appointments will be made to look like an easy road to peace. Already some hopelessly would-be Quislings are trying to keep their records "clear," refraining from democratic commitments, waiting for an Axis victory to come out into the open.

Even when a victory for the United Nations is in sight we shall have the old cry for a return to narrow nationalism. These expectations disappointed by victory, the defeatists will try to sabotage the peace.

"Scapegoat Psychology."
In explaining the rather widespread criticism of our British allies, resulting from the reverses British armies have suffered in the Pacific war, the group classes this as "scapegoat psychology." In other words, feeling guilty about our failures of our own, failure in preparedness, in production, at Pearl Harbor, etc., we subconsciously seek to excuse ourselves by pointing to the failures of others. "It is," says the group, "a psychology which leads each group or nation to lodge the blame elsewhere in order to excuse itself."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.
From the news columns of Friday, March 9, 1917:

"Washington, March 8.—Secretary Lansing and Attorney General Gregory have advised President Wilson that he has full authority to arm American merchant ships against illegal attacks by German submarines."

And Fifty Years Ago.
From the news columns of Wednesday, March 9, 1892:

"The Atlanta Baseball Club perfected its organization. The officers elected are: J. K. Ohl, president; Mr. S. W. Postell, vice president; Mr. R. C. Bosche, secretary and treasurer."

Word Stories.
By W. Worthington Wells.

Hugh Fullerton, the famous sports writer, wrote an article for a recent edition of "Your Life Magazine" entitled, "What's Your Pet ALIBI." This story carries a splendid object lesson as well as an example of a word that is being widely used in a manner far removed from its original meaning.

He wrote, "Every 'Alibi' I've ever known in baseball has followed the same route to ruin in his career. He is so intent upon thinking up excuses for errors of omission and commission that he becomes a pain to his fellows. The same applies to any walk in life."

ALIBI
Alibi is a noun pronounced AL-i-bi with the accent on the first syllable. It is also used as a verb, and an adverb.

Alibi was originally used in legal terms when a person tried to prove that he was at a place other than that charged in the indictment, at the time of the commission of the act.

Some of the later dictionaries say that alibi is a colloquial expression used instead of excuse, as an excuse, or a plausible excuse. To understand its use more clearly, look up the word colloquialism in a late edition of an unabridged dictionary.

Is Spring Too Good?

LOS ANGELES, March 8.—Spring has come already in southern California. There are buds on the trees, and newly seeded grass is green, and people are setting out their new flowers. And if you get away from the streets and the sidewalks you can smell the fresh earth, as you can smell it in Indiana a couple of months from now.

The sun beats down, and my tan is coming back. The heat of the day drives away little aches and pains, and your spirit takes heart anew, and you expand. It is good to be alive in the spring, when warmth comes again to the earth.

Maybe that's what's the matter with America. Maybe we're all too pleased at just being alive. Maybe if it snowed all summer we'd be more willing to die.

Speaking of dying, in my hotel coffee shop the other night there was a very noisy and jovial drunk. I gathered he was a high executive in some big defense factory.

He was telling his friends (everybody could overhear) that he had just one ambition—to live for two days after the war is over.

The first day he'd spend tooting a horn, he said. The second day he'd go and see his dogs, which he's had to put in a kennel for the duration. After that, let death come.

Speaking Of Dogs

And speaking of dogs (my, how one thing leads to another), I've recently had a dog letter from Mildred Barrett, of Sherman Oaks, Cal. She says:

"I own a St. Bernard. This gargantuan pup is 11 months old and weighs 120 pounds. In one week she eats 12 pounds of meat, five pounds of kibbles, a box of dog biscuits, seven quarts of milk, a half dozen eggs, two pounds of cottage cheese, and a large can of tomatoes, plus huge doses of calcium and cod liver oil. So I, too, must keep my nose to the grindstone to feed a dog. But what a lovely big brute she is."

Mildred Barrett. It sounds to me as if you get a mighty nice table. Could I drop around some noon for a few kibbles? You can skip the cod liver oil that day.

Locating Hospital

Governor John E. Miles, of New Mexico, has recently been in a hospital here in Los Angeles, so I decided to go to see him. We phoned and made all arrangements.

Then we got out the car, but before starting we unfolded the map of Los Angeles to find out how to get where we were going.

Los Angeles is so terrifically big that you almost have to be a trained explorer to find anything. But we finally located the hospital's street on the map, marked it with a pencil, and then went to find it. We phoned and made all arrangements.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

HOW LONG TO WORK I would like to put down a few ideas about the work-week.

Since I am writing them calmly and in a quiet room, I could hope they might be read in calmness. But that is hoping too much. People aren't calm on the subject of the 40-hour week. And that is a pity, too, because there is so much need of calmness and especially of understanding.

There is no law prohibiting the working of more than 40 hours per week. It is odd there should be any such misunderstanding about that.

There is a law which provides for the payment of time and a half for overtime. Some contracts call for double time for overtime work on Sundays. Some industries are working 60 hours.

So much for present facts.

Now, it is also obvious we will have to step up our hours of work. The cost would be prohibitive if overtime has to be paid for longer hours of work every day.

I believe the responsible labor leaders of the AFL and of the CIO would be willing now to agree to a 48-hour week in war industries, without overtime, if they could obtain it by any nonhostile legislation or agreement.

You have to understand that for every labor racketeer eager to gouge industrial and business managers, the record of the past shows there is in industry and business, an equivalent number of racketeers eager to gouge and exploit labor. Neither party wears a halo.

We must admit, too, that the recent Smith amendment, which was defeated, was not a fair law. It was an amendment aimed at permitting the return of sweatshop hours in mills and factories not engaged in war production. It was not effective in meeting the problem. Indeed, it did not so much as touch the problem. It was a most unintelligent and futile bill. Yet, amazingly, a great many responsible persons deplored its defeat.

NEW LEGISLATION There must be new legislation which will be aimed at providing a solution for the real problem.

This legislation should make labor leaders more responsible as legislation already enacted has made industry and finance more responsible.

Too many labor leaders have forgot labor and gone into politics. Labor no longer, with the exceptions of some few unions, claims to be democratic in conduct or structure. This rank and file knows. It comes all the way down.

There is some restiveness in Atlanta. For instance, a little quiet investigation has led me to believe the motion-picture operator's examining board of the city is not fair, in a sense, a closed corporation. Its record doesn't smell good. It also is evident that city council has been afraid of it. The public is hearing about it. The public opinion reaction to the reported demands, two men in each suburban booth, and a great hike in wages for a job which requires no more skill than is required to run an electric sewing machine, will be very bad.

This one illustration is used as typical of the many which may be found in many non-war industries or businesses. Much of it grows out of the stories of great wages and great profits in the war industries. Much of it grows out of bungling in Washington and also out of the emotions aroused by the hostility and the falsehoods behind the recent Smith amendment.

Responsible labor leaders know they must clean up. It is not easy. The labor racketeers have become as strongly entrenched as have political racketeers in some of our cities, large and small. Responsible labor leaders know longer hours must be worked. They are willing to work them. But they would not be willing to have hours ordered by the congressmen who would destroy all labor legislation.

Labor must see that the men in the services are learning to hate labor. There will be that harvest for labor to reap when war is over. Unless, of course, something is done now.

RACKETEERS A bill which didn't cover the problem would be to go to see him. We phoned and made all arrangements.

Then we got out the car, but before starting we unfolded the map of Los Angeles to find out how to get where we were going.

Los Angeles is so terrifically big that you almost have to be a trained explorer to find anything. But we finally located the hospital's street on the map, marked it with a pencil, and then went to find it. We phoned and made all arrangements.

Dudley Glass

Up until a day or two ago the sacrifices of wartime had not hit me personally.

I can't get tires, but mine are fairly good—though I doubt they'll run three years. I couldn't buy a new car, but I couldn't have bought one anyway, except by swapping a home for it—and sleeping in a car isn't so pleasant for a long-legged man. I've tried it. My bed isn't the softest in the world, but it beats the back seat of a sedan 200 per cent. Besides, I'd probably let the Mistress of the Minor have the back seat and I'd curl up under the steering wheel. The dog. Maybe the luggage compartment would fit him.

Typewriters are out—but I have a typewriter. Sugar is rationed—but we use mighty little sugar at our house.

So my personal hardships were matters of the future, I assumed. Until Saturday. When cigarettes jumped two cents a pack—in many stores.

Well, we must all share in suffering. I can look at this cigarette advance two ways. The patriotic way would be to smoke an extra pack a day and thus help the nation. But I just can't afford that. The sensible way would be to cut down on smoking—quit entirely. Which is pretty tough. Maybe I could be a clock watchman—and smoke a cigarette only once an hour, on the hour. I've tried that, too. No net results.

Maybe a pipe is the answer. And I've tried that. But I never could keep a pipe fired properly. I'd use more matches than cigarettes ever cost me.

I could cut out movies to balance things. But that wouldn't help, because I get in free at the movies, except for the tax. I might cut out taxicabs—but I don't use one, at my own expense, often enough to save 45 cents a month.

Maybe I'll cut out my wife's spring clothes—if she's planning any. What with tire saving and possible gasoline rationing she'll have to stay home, anyway.

The Difference

Story going the newspaper rounds. About an Englishman and an American who called upon an Oriental potentate. The Rajah asked the Englishman: "Are you a British subject?" The visitor said he was, and proud to be one. "And you, I suppose, are a subject of the United States?" he asked the American, a home owner. "Subject? Hell, no," he replied.

"I own part of the United States."

Want to do some deductive reasoning? Then try your mentality on this little story from the Scrap Book:

"In the far northern wilds of Canada dwell a queer tribe of Indians. Some of them have red feet and some of them have white feet. The red-footed Indians invariably speak the truth—they cannot lie. The white-footed Indians invariably lie—they cannot speak the truth.

"Now, a missionary approached a group of three of these Indians and asked the first Indian what color of feet he had. The first Indian replied in guttural French, which the missionary could not understand. Turning to the second Indian he asked, 'What did that Indian say?' The second Indian answered, 'He said, I have red feet.' The missionary said to him, while pointing to the second Indian, 'What color of feet does HE have?' The third Indian answered, 'He has white feet.'"

"Riddle: What color of feet did the third Indian have?"

QUILLIN IS THANKED FOR MANY COLUMNS

Editor, Constitution: I wanted to write Bob Quillen a personal letter of appreciation for his article in your paper Thursday but was not sure about his post office address. And that's why my appreciation is not confined to this one article alone for he invariably tracks the mark in all that he writes. "And a word spoken in due season how good is it!" Helpful at least to the columnist who might mold public opinion, consciously or unconsciously for the glory of God, the good of mankind and the promotion of righteousness in the earth. which in just two premises cuts to the quick and lays bare the canker of greed that threatens the fall of America and the decadence of every hope and ideal that has justified our existence as a nation of people. Namely the nationalism issuing out of Washington and the utter deadness of religious fervor and without which the unifying of all our forces to repel invasion will prove just another attempt to revivify the dead, the damned, and the damned.

WEAK SIGNALS SPOIL BLACKOUT SUCCESS

Editor, Constitution: The blackout seems to have woked very well, according to those reporting from the air and they should know. How it did is difficult to understand, because the signals were so inadequate that had we not been expecting it we never would have noticed the whistles and sirens and we live just three blocks from a fire station. What might happen if we should have a real air raid, as unexpected as the Pearl Harbor raid? We were on the "alert" Thursday night, but the signals were so indefinite and weak and so much a part of our everyday life they would hardly be noticed if not anticipated.

Sometime ago someone wrote a letter to the effect that Atlanta (and other cities) should have a distinctive alarm siren and Thursday night should have proved this point. We are so accustomed to factory whistles' dull drone and to fire, police and ambulance sirens that they don't make much impression on us. What we need is a loud, shrill siren whose blast will startle us into immediate action. Certainly the taxpayers in city, county and state pay out enough money to justify adequate equipment in case of emergency.

GRADUATE OF BERRY WRITES ON EDUCATOR

Editor, Constitution: As a graduate of the Berry Schools, I want to thank you for your beautiful picture of the life of Miss Martha Berry, and the saga of her great service to the boys and girls of the south.

The shade of her great tree of life was ever for underprivileged boys and girls passing by. The ripples of her life will go on and on influencing the world for the better.

To the thousands of us, "her boys and girls," she smiled upon us and offered us the shelter and the meaning of her umbrella—which meant another and a higher life for us.

Most educational institutions are looking for young men and women anxious to write their names high in the annals of success. Miss Martha Berry sought the underprivileged rural youth of our southland who knew not the meaning of the annals of success. She took us in and taught us the joy and beauty of a life of service.

Heed ye, the Berry Schools that carry on the name and the service of Martha Berry. She watches "neath the shade of the big tree near the chapel. Her soul looks down from the heavens above as a sentinel to see that no country boy or girl is ever denied admittance to the Berry Schools, no matter how little promise he or she may seem to have, and no matter how many cockleburrs in his or her hair!"

Mexican Governor Dies From Wound

TOLUCA, Mexico, March 8.—(AP)—Governor Alfredo Zarate Albarra, Governor of the State of Mexico, died today from bullet wounds inflicted Thursday night at a party in this state capital.

The Governor's private secretary, Camilo Mercado, on Friday signed an official bulletin of the state government stating that Governor Albarra was wounded during a quarrel and after "considerable drinking" by State Legislator Fernando Rubio, a 34-year-old son of Pascual Ortiz Rubio, former President of Mexico.

Ortiz Rubio, however, denied having taken part in the shooting and federal police said that "paraphrasing" tests on his hands indicated he had not fired a gun. No formal warrant was issued and no charge made.

Ortiz Rubio has a permanent commission of the state legislature which has the responsibility of electing a governor in event of the death of the incumbent.

F.D.R. May Challenge Farm Bloc Tonight

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and two high administration aides are expected to challenge, in nationwide addresses tomorrow night, the effort of the congressional farm bloc to prevent the sale of government-owned surplus crops at below-parity prices.

Informed persons predicted this newest turn in the controversy arising out of the government effort to hold down food prices would come in scheduled radio talks to a series of community farm dinners by the President, Vice President Wallace and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard.

The scheduled talks (at 9:45 p. m., Eastern War Time) tomorrow come in the midst of the controversy in the house over the parity measure. The farm bloc seems to put the ban against sales of surplus crops below parity into a $695,000,000 agricultural appropriation bill. The amendment is expected to be debated on the house floor tomorrow.

An effort to compromise the quarrel between the administration and the farm bloc has been made, with a proposal from some farm members of Congress to permit the sale of surplus crops below parity figures for use in livestock feeding only.

(Parity is a price calculated by economists to give a farm commodity the same purchasing power it had in a base period, usually 1909-14.)

Money Bill Issue.

In addition to the prospective house fight over the parity question, the controversy over the efforts to trim down the appropriation bill will continue into this week. One group in the house endeavored for four days last week to pare away millions of dollars from the total, but at the weekend had succeeded in getting only a tentative reduction of slightly more than $600,000.

When the house has cleared the farm bill, the leaders hope to get quick passage of legislation asked by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to increase the federal debt limit from $65,000,000,000 to $125,000,000,000. Morgenthau said the increase was necessary to permit financing of the war.

The Senate's chief business for the start of the week is to decide whether one of its members, William Langer, Republican, North Dakota, should retain the seat he has held more than 15 months. The Senate agreed to start consideration of that question tomorrow.

Langer is expected to direct his own defense.

Majority Report.

Senators Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, and Austin, Republican, Vermont, were designated to represent the Senate privileges and elections committee majority which found, by a 13 to 3 vote "that William Langer is not entitled to be a senator of the United States from the state of North Dakota."

The majority reported that its investigation demonstrated "a continuous contemptuous, and shameful disregard for the high concepts of public duty that every public official swears to uphold and defend under his constitutional oath" on the part of Langer.

A minority report, signed by Senators Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, and Murdock, Democrat, Utah, who with Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, voted for Langer in committee, asked the Senate to remember that nearly all of the charges and counter-charges had been current for years in

Good Morning
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.
CHARACTER.

Dr. Ryland Knight was preaching the other morning to the preachers—the white and colored preachers.

In our quarterly meeting—a n d he was emphasizing the truth that what counts in preachers and in laymen alike, is character. And I need not add that Dr. Knight made it quite clear that the only basis of genuine character is the grace of God.

It was such a good sermon—the sort of sermon that stirs you up and arouses in your heart a sense of yearning to be more like Jesus. I do enjoy these quarterly meetings of the preachers for this very fact that I get to hear someone else preach, and preachers need preaching just like other folks.

But what I started out to do in this column was to pass on one of the impressive illustrations used by Dr. Knight in his sermon dealing with character. (The other half of the sermon dealt with faith.)

He told the story of the Chinese building that great wall, back in the third century, B. C. He described its massive proportions, and its length of more than 1,200 miles. The purpose in building the great wall was to keep back the Tartar enemies. It was believed that this wall would do just that—that it was too thick for battering rams ever to pierce it, and it was too high for the enemy to scale it.

But, alas, the enemy bribed one of the keepers of the gate, and the enemy poured through in devastating attack upon the people who trusted themselves to the protection of the great wall.

All the labor and money and time spent in the building of the great wall went for naught, because the answer was not in the keepers of the gate who had no character.

Character! The sermon has been with me all day, and particularly that story about the great wall. And working along, Rubio in my study tonight listening to the drip of the cold rain outside my window, I have read a number of favorite passages in cherished volumes on character—what Phillips Brooks said, for example, about Abraham Lincoln: "In him was vindicated the greatness of real goodness and the goodness of real greatness." And that sublime passage about Barnabas: "For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith." And the passage about Dorcas: "This woman was full of good works and almsdeeds which she did."

And then I turned to the dictionary to study the meaning of the word "character." It is a very interesting derivation. It means "to cut sharp, to be engraved."

I stayed there a long time with that description of the meaning of the word. Look at it in your unabridged dictionary. It will impress upon you. This word character.

They Can Help You

• Meet the "Food for Freedom" objectives
• Use electric equipment more efficiently
• Reduce wastes of power and materials

The President of the United States has called the South the "arsenal of nutrition . . . the storehouse of all vitamins." The government has asked the South to produce "Food for Freedom"—more food and more milk, for use at home, overseas, and by the United Nations' fighting forces. This is the vital job in this war that Georgia farmers and dairymen have been asked to do.

Our 14 Rural Engineers have laid aside their other duties, so they may give their full time to helping our customers in this patriotic big job. Under our new Customer Service Plan, their experience is available to you, without charge and whenever you ask for it.

They will help you get better and more efficient use of your electric equipment—feed grinders, milking machines, incubators and brooders, soil-heating cable, and the rest. They will help find ways of making electric equipment last longer and serve better. They will help put broken appliances back to work. Both things put off the day when new equipment will be needed, thus conserving metals needed for the war.

In every home, store, and factory—and on every farm—certain wastes of electricity occur every day. These should be stopped, for electricity is the force that keeps war production at full speed. Our Rural Engineers will help you find and correct possible wastes. This will save you money and at the same time stop waste of needed electric power.

Power and metals are vital ingredients of success in war. Everybody should avoid wasting them. But Georgia farmers also have the other big job of increasing production—and at the very time when there are fewer hands to do the work, because so many patriotic Georgians have joined the fighting forces. Electricity can help to fill that gap. It can increase production on the farms, just as it is multiplying the production of factories. If you need additional electric equipment, call on our Rural Engineer. He will help you plan the installation, to get bigger output with the greatest economy in power.

"Food for Freedom" is a program that deserves the cooperation of all. It takes healthy, strong men to make the implements of war, in larger quantities, at a faster pace. It takes plenty of food to keep our armed forces fit and full of fight. It takes boatloads of food to prevent starvation in the home lands of our allies. Food will help win the war!

That's why the government has set up "Food for Freedom" goals, why it has asked farmers and dairymen to bigger production of milk, peanuts, pigs, and other food. Our Rural Engineers are ready, willing, and anxious to help you meet these objectives on the farm front.

There is no cost or obligation for the friendly assistance of a Rural Engineer. Make use of his valuable experience. Ask at any store to have him call on you.

'Beautiful Eyes Deserve Beautiful Eyewear,' Quotes Opticians

Local Concern Being Highly Congratulated

Kalish & Ainsworth Selected To Serve Opticians' Guild Here.

By PRESS HIDDLESTON.
Friends and patrons of Kalish & Ainsworth, well-known opticians at 380 Peachtree street, are congratulating this popular firm on having recently been honored by the Opticians' Guild of America for their selection to serve as representative in Atlanta.

This is an honor from a national body not lightly bestowed, and means that, due to the high standing and efficiency of the firm, they are given that honor in recognition of their work.

The Opticians' Guild of America is recognized as an outstanding national organization, founded "for the purpose of promoting the advancement of the science of optics, the development of new and improved methods in connection with the application thereof, and the dissemination of information among its members."

Only by the highest standard of ethics under which a firm operates can it gain the recognition that has been bestowed on Kalish & Ainsworth. Membership in the national body is by invitation only, which makes the compliment paid the Atlanta firm just that much more to be appreciated by it and its friends and patrons.

J. N. Kalish, head of the firm, is naturally very appreciative of the selection of his concern for membership, "and we shall strive harder than ever to carry out and promote the splendid principles for which the Guild stands," he says.

"Beautiful eyes deserve beautiful eyewear," says Mr. Ainsworth. "Facial beauty begins at the eyes. Eyes that need aid are more beautiful when becoming glasses are worn. Our experience and study in designing glasses to suit each individual has made us leaders in our field with thousands of happy customers. You, too, reader, can be made happy with your glasses. They do not have to make you look aged if properly designed to your features."

The optical profession is necessarily technical and is one which requires training and skill. Kalish & Ainsworth desire to protect not only the public but themselves from competition of unskilled men.

Oculists know that unless their prescriptions are carefully and correctly filled, their entire examination and prescription for glasses is valueless to the patient.

"This is a day of specialization," says Mr. Kalish, "and giving quality lenses, ground to perfect accuracy, has been our work for many years. The buying public—those who need eyeglasses—have learned to depend on the type of work we give them, and certainly we expect to try to continue to hold that confidence."

Paul S. Mooney, associate salesman, is in charge of the firm's manufacturing and grinding plant, ably assisted by William K. Blackburn, both highly trained in the work they perform. The offices and fitting rooms of the firm are located next door to the Medical Arts building on Peachtree street.

GRATEFUL FOR HEARING—Marion Roger Middlebrook relating to Dr. J. Frank Wallace, O.D., chief consultant for the AuRex Atlanta Company, 1001 William-Oliver building, how his new AuRex Hearing Aid has enabled him to gain his rightful place in life.

Happy He Can Hear His Dog Lapping Water

Roger Middlebrook Relates Pleasure AuRex Has Given Him.

"Even the sound of my dog lapping water to quench his thirst was a joy, and is among my first cherished experiences, as my hearing was so well returned after 13 years of hard-of-hearing," said Roger Middlebrook in an interview Saturday with Dr. J. Frank Wallace, O. D., chief consultant for the AuRex Atlanta Company, as he sat in the offices of the concern in the William Oliver building.

"I had even forgotten that sound," Mr. Middlebrook continued, "as I know all hard-of-hearing people do, as well as the sounds of most familiar noises about their homes."

Mr. Middlebrook had almost given up hope of ever being able to hear again. His loss of hearing had forced him to take work where he did not have to depend on his hearing. However, he states that since being able to hear through the aid of AuRex, he has obtained a position far beyond his expectations, with promotions and advancement permitting him to do things he little dreamed of before hearing. This shows definitely that the world has been denied this fine young man's ability.

Today Mr. Middlebrook is most grateful to the AuRex Company for making it possible for him to regain a full and useful life—to take his place in industry and do his part in these trying times, when it is so very important for every one of us to do our part.

If you are among the hard-of-hearing, and want the music of the world of sound opened up to you, visit the AuRex Atlanta Company, 1001 William Oliver building, and let it demonstrate to you the marvelous and comforting aid it can be to you.

Save the Truck, Is Advice of Yancey Bros.

They Can Remake or Repair Body Now on Your Chassis.

It behooves every business concern and every individual to take care of any trucks they might be operating just now.

With the positive restrictions of the federal government now on all vehicles that use tires—with little likelihood any more can be purchased for some time—maybe a long time—if you have a truck of any size or type that could be made better, to suit your needs, take it to Yancey Brothers, 110 Jackson street, N. E., and let them put it in the best of shape.

This concern has been in the business of manufacturing and repairing truck bodies for the past 30 years. They were established here in 1912. Their specialty has been auto truck bodies, hearses and ambulances.

While times have changed much due to war conditions—times that require the most rigid economy and care in the use of certain vehicles—there has been no change in the dependable and efficient service this concern renders.

However, just now they call attention to the care one should take of their truck. Don't continue to run it with a body in a run-down condition. Yancey Brothers can put a new body on your chassis, or they can repair it in any manner you desire. They can enlarge it—they can reduce and lighten it, if it will serve your needs better, and at the same time tend to make your tires last longer. And then they can dress it up—paint it, and make it look like a new truck.

They are devoting much of their time now in reconditioning truck bodies. They have expert workmen who know how to do the best job. If you need work of this kind—if you want to make your truck last longer and look better, visit these "truck-body doctors," on Jackson street, and let them do you a real service—and make a worthwhile saving for you in the long run.

ATLANTA ENVELOPE COMPANY serves many businesses and industries throughout the country, with its simplified pay roll envelope that is saving time and money for paymasters everywhere. Particularly adapted to the need for speed and efficiency in handling pay rolls, it also carries the added protection for employers who must guard against costly mistakes in wage records.

Simplified Pay Roll Envelope Made by Atlanta Envelope Co.

The Tip-On-Envelope Assures Complete Protection Under the Law. Also Gives Employer Protection of a Signed Receipt by Each Employee.

Today's business concerns face a battle for time—and time saved means money saved, and a vital contribution to our country's all-out defense efforts.

Already, many rigid regulations face many concerns. The wage-hour division insists on rigid control of all payroll records, and rightfully so. This means added bookkeeping details—more responsibilities.

Rising taxes—new taxes seem inevitable. Will there be a new tax on all checks written? If so, this presents a payroll problem that can be met efficiently and more economically through the use of Tip-on-Envelopes with cash. The Tip-on-Envelope, manufactured by the Atlanta Envelope Company, provides not only all the protective measures desired, but in a single entry, provides all these essentials:

1. Employee's record of Social Security deduction.
 2. A combination time, wage and deduction statement for the employee.
 3. A strong payroll envelope.
 4. A receipt for wages paid.
 5. A wage and hour record—signed by the employee.
- No special designs or forms are required—in fact, Atlanta Envelope Company carries a stock design that can be easily adapted to the handling of payrolls for any type of business. You may see samples of this envelope by calling or writing Atlanta Envelope Company.

EQUIPMENT OF HUGE SCALE—Size of some of the machinery used in the Atlantic brewery in Atlanta may be grasped by comparison with the man standing below one of the great kettles. All the equipment is thoroughly modern and built according to scientific principles.

ATLANTIC BOCK NOW AT ITS BEST

Made and Aged by Process 800 Years Old

The sign of the goat, symbol of the arrival of bock beer, usually is a harbinger of spring. Centuries ago the season for bock started just before Easter and lasted only a few days.

But in Atlanta the excellent bock beer produced by the Atlantic Brewing Company has been on the market in taprooms for more than a month. When it's so good, why reserve it until spring?

The Atlantic Company's bock was put into the huge casks in the chilly cellars last August. It has been aging since then, turning a darker shade day by day. When it flows from the spigot in your favorite resort it is a dark, rich brown, darker than other types of beer and ale.

The coloring is not artificial. For bock beer, the malt is cured over a much hotter fire than is used for other beers. The extra heat helps the malt to produce caramelized sugar, and that darkens the brew.

The "Sign of the Goat," dates back 800 years, according to tradition. The Duke of Brandenburg and the Duke of Bavaria quarreled over which could brew the finest beer. The Bavarian had brewed an especially fine beer, dark and rich. The Brandenburg brought along his favorite pale beer. Each drank his own product. And as they were each standing on one leg in the courtyard and trying to thread a needle, to determine which beer had the greater "influence" a huge goat wandered into the courtyard and butted the Brandenburg off his feet—or foot. The jury ruled in favor of this new Bavarian type of beer. And as "bock" is German for

Gallup Poll Reveals:

East Central States Favor Draft

By GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N. J., March 8.—The East Central states—Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan—were the center of isolationist sentiment prior to Pearl Harbor; never the less if a plebiscite were held there today on the issue of total mobilization of American men and women for the war effort, it would win approval by a substantial margin.

That is the indication from an American Institute of Public Opinion survey throughout the East Central states, a survey which is being conducted in all sections of the country as well. Reports already completed for the New England and Middle Atlantic areas have shown substantial majorities there for total mobilization.

Willing to Sacrifice.
Reaction in the East Central area also indicates a readiness to sacrifice for war. Government registration of all able-bodied men and women for war and defense work is favored by 81 per cent in the East Central area. The vote of the area for total mobilization is as follows:

"After finding out what each person can do, should the government have the power to tell each citizen what to do as his part in

| East Central States. | |
|----------------------|-----|
| Yes | 56% |
| No | 35 |
| Undecided | 9 |

Confining the vote to those with definite opinions, the results would be:

| Vote of Those With Opinions. | |
|------------------------------|-----|
| Yes | 62% |
| No | 38 |

In New England, 57 per cent favor total mobilization, and in the Middle Atlantic states, 60 per cent, earlier poll reports showed.

Isolationist Center.
In the period before America's entrance into the war, Institute polls found that of all sections the East Central section was least in favor of various measures for aid to England. Sentiment there was likewise substantially lower than for the rest of the country on the issue of the selective service draft in 1940. Chicago was the center of a number of anti-war move-

Evicted Family Now Has Found Place To Stay

Make Down Payment on Rent Through $6 From Friends.

Walter Murrow, his wife and four children, who Friday were forced from their residence because they could not pay the rent, yesterday found a place to stay.

Friends gave Murrow $6, enough to make a down payment on the rent, and he gathered up his belongings, which had been moved out in the open, and took them to a residence on Howell Mill road near Girard avenue.

Murrow said yesterday he was going to try to do something to "today," but he did not know what it would be.

The Murrows said they had enough food to eat yesterday, but did not know about today. A friend gave Murrow a quarter of a sack of coal, which Murrow carried on his back from the yard.

Big-Top Stars Will Feature Circus Shows

Aerial Artist, Noted Rider, Acrobats To Be Seen Here This Week.

Cloowns, acrobats, bareback riders and stars of the flying trapeze, all will be here Wednesday when the Atlanta Woman's Club circus opens for a week's stay.

Mrs. Conrad Walden and Mrs. John F. MacDougall, who have arranged the program, have booked such outstanding circus stars as Dainty Jean Spalding, who has been dubbed by the circus world as the successor to the late Miss Lillian Leitzel, world's foremost woman circus aerial artist. While hanging by one arm, Miss Spalding will throw her body over and over for more than 100 times.

Lillian St. Leon, youngest member of the famous St. Leon family of bareback riders, was born to the circus business. She represents the fourth generation of her family who has gained world acclaim as a circus bareback rider.

Other outstanding circus acts booked by the Woman's Club are Bob Fisher and his Fearless Flyers; the Oliveras Trio; balancing artists; the Pina Troupe of acrobats; the Royal Four, tightwire artists training horses, elephants, dogs, monkeys, and the thousand and one other things required to make up an all-round circus, have been given a part on the program.

Proceeds from the circus will go into the club's defense, charity and civic work fund.

Cotton... THE SOUTH'S MIGHTY ALLY

The saga of the South is the story of Cotton . . . the history of a people who planted colonies and founded a mighty nation.

It's the story of a far-sighted man . . . of Savannah's Eli Whitney who saw Cotton as a powerful Ally . . . of his Cotton Gin which wrought miraculous changes just 150 years ago . . . of the new wealth and strength it brought our land.

It's the story of an Ally which has fought to protect its own, in good times and bad . . . side by side with the Southern Farmer . . . since the days our ships sped beneath billowing Cotton sails to meet the tyrant's forces.

Today Cotton fights beside us once more . . . an Ally of inestimable worth . . . an Ally of firing line and great home front!

A MIGHTY ALLY as clothing for all the inhabitants of the earth!

A MIGHTY ALLY as surgical dressings for civilians, armed forces!

A MIGHTY ALLY as an integral part of our vast production machine!

A MIGHTY ALLY as cellulose for high explosives and ammunition!

A MIGHTY ALLY as rich oils and seed to feed both man and beast!

A MIGHTY ALLY as canvas to cover men and wartime materials!

A MIGHTY ALLY as a component part of plastics for armaments!

Cotton is our Ally today in thousands of ways . . . most powerful Ally of a powerful people at war! With the strength of the soil and the conviction of the ages . . . it fights, once more, to protect the Liberty of the land where it grows!

A SOUTHERN INSTITUTION FOR SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS...

Rich's

Representative of the exotic motif from Latin America is this striking evening costume modeled by Lupe Velez. Off-white is the background and the print splashes tropical flowers of emerald green and coral. To wear with these new bright colors, there is a new lipstick, specially created to go with the new Latin-American colors. It is described in the accompanying article.

Match South American Prints With a Special New Lipstick

By Winifred Ware.

To "diplomatically" express your personality, there is nothing quite so effective as the new South American or Pan-American fashions, which have suddenly hit our continent in a wave of Good Neighborliness.

Also dominant in the Good Neighbor Fashion Policy is the combination of good old United States Navy blue, with the bright splashes of color inspired by our neighbors to the south. And that is as it should be, for now, certainly, is the time for collaboration between all the Americas, in fashion as well as in the more serious matters.

Perhaps you have been one of the pioneers in this Latin American trend. And, perhaps, you have decided that you just aren't the type to go all-out for a splash of tropical color.

Maybe you've decided that these colors, lovely as they were, just don't go with your own particular coloring.

We wager that you will change your mind when you use a new and different shade of lipstick, which was created after months of research in collaboration with the fashion designers.

This specially created fashion shade is not too bright for daylight, and its slight blue undertone (this shade is not at all purplish) makes it withstand the color draining of artificial light. It has a chamellion-like quality of adaptation, which makes it equally at home with the lime greens, the startling pinks, the tangerines, the turquoises and all the other sharp tropical shades, and yet it is perfect for the bright blues, the smoky blues, and above all, for American Navy.

Truly, this lipstick is a boost for the Good Neighbor Policy! This new shade is available in two sizes. One sells for $1.00 and the other for $1.50. For more information about this new lipstick, call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565. If you live out of town, write me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will tell you its name and where you can buy it.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) The day as a whole is one to attend to private interests, and do not make expansions along ordinary lines. By ordinary lines is meant whatever your usual business activities may be. Discussion, discussions, flare-ups may be encountered.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) The entire day is most favorable for meeting old friends, for obtaining the co-operation of others, for mingling socially for making contacts with affluent people, professional people, and for advancing your personal interests.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and until 9:30 p. m. you will desire swift progress or want to be in a hurry. Therefore, you are likely to rush into things too quickly.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) More success will be attained today by sticking to routine. Be deliberate in what you do and do not undertake affairs impulsively.

The best aspects of the day operate during the period previous to 12 noon.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO) Before 3:41 p. m. and after 8:31 p. m. is an excellent period, especially in matters that involve mental effort. Contact others with social likes.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO) The period previous to 11 attention to only ordinary and routine matters. The remainder of the day you can give full rein to your activities, whether business, sports, or social.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA) Monetary affairs may be difficult today. The underlying trend of the entire day is towards optimism, making this rather an auspicious day for new and important undertakings, plans, decisions and changes.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO) The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable for financial interests, making personal decisions, contacting superiors, as well as general business activities. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3 p. m.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS) An excellent day to go slow in undertaking new plans. Be cautious in travel and pay special attention to health. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3:51 p. m.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) The period previous to 3:23 p. m. favors dealings in real estate and matters that have already been started. After 3:23 p. m. a feeling of nervousness may predominate. The period suggests sticking to routine.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS) This should be a very favorable day for any interests. There is a feeling of permanency in your transactions which will allow you to plan conservatively, work diligently and find harmony, and you will benefit according to the effort you put forth.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES) Previous to 8:13 a. m. favors general activities, and when others will have a more favorable attitude towards you. You will, therefore, plan naturally say and do the right thing. Between 8:13 a. m. and 9:35 p. m. is most favorable for inspirational ideas.

You may obtain as many astrological charts as you wish for your family and friends. Send in the birthdate, address, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover each birthdate.

Mickey Rooney Will Go Collegiate With Lead Role in "A Yank at Eton"

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—(INS)—Edmund Gwenn, who did such a swell job in the Broadway stage play "The Wokey," is back among us. He has returned to play one of the leading roles in "A Yank at Eton," Mickey Rooney's next movie. Next is what I mean, because "H u m a n Comedy," the William Saroyan script is not ready for—Mons. Rooney. So he will report first to Norman Turoff, his director, and John Considine Jr., who will produce this timely little number.

The story, by George Oppenheimer, sounds as if it will go well both in England and the U. S. A. It's the story of a 100 per cent American lad whose mother marries an Englishman, and instead of going to Notre Dame he finds himself at Eton, where Mickey will be up to all his familiar mischief and Turoff, who directed the "Boys' Town" series, will add that human interest touch which has done so much to popularize M-G-M's pride and joy.

I won't be surprised if Cary Grant signs for "Claudia." He has been in conference with David Selznick and he will be free after he finishes a commitment at RKO this summer. The chances that Ben Lyon could return in time to play the role are exceedingly slim. It looked for a time as if he might be transferred to the United States as a pilot, but he is doing such important work in England it is doubtful if the British government will want him and Bebe Daniels to leave now.

Gradwell Sears, vice president of United Artists, whose reputation for veracity and fairness is well known, says the Hays office has made no objection to Gypsy Rose Lee's "G-String Murder." Says Grad: "We are confident that 'G-String Murder' as a motion picture tastefully produced, will be a success." Another protest comes from Simon and Schuster, publishers, who say the New Yorker is working with Miss Lee on a series of autobiographical stories to start soon and that the book deals with an accepted phase of American life. Apparently United Artists' treatment of "G-String Murder" will be such it will in no way offend good taste.

What a swell picture "Joe Smith, American" turned out to be, and what a credit to M-G-M Robert Young and Marsha Hunt. I didn't see it until a few days ago, although it was shown at the White House and in the east. I believe every young American of voting age should see it, for it is filled with ideals. It is the sort of story that makes you proud that you are an American. The whole picture illustrates perfectly what I mean when I say pictures are too long, for this is just the right length and it ends where it should end without ever becoming anticlimactic.

MY DAY: Abbott and Costello Try To Buy Bomber

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Friday.—I was only a half an hour late in arriving in Washington from Seattle yesterday, which, considering the distance, is very remarkable. On both trips the weather was very smooth, and for this time of the year that means I really was very fortunate.

Last evening, after a quiet dinner with my husband and a few guests, I went to the opening session of the institute organized by the Washington bureau of the International Student Service. Dr. Zook, of the American Council on Education, presided. Dr. Brown, also of the American Council on Education, who has been working with the Army and Navy on questions pertaining to the education of the young men in the services, as well as the preparation of youth in our colleges, spoke. He gave the young people a very good picture of the different plans made by the Army and Navy to obtain good material for officers and petty officers, and to help the men already in the service to progress and improve themselves while they are on duty.

My mail is interesting reading these days. Yesterday, I came across a letter from a woman who is arranging free appearances for New York city actors and actresses, both on government request and for private organizations. She explained to me that there are a great many people who would like to do what private groups want done, but that everyone seemed to have been offered someone whose name is known from coast to coast.

I realize, of course, that all groups want to make "their meeting" a great success, but I am afraid we cannot ask these ever-generous artists to be in more than one place at a time, or to do so much that they cannot do their regular work acceptably.

I have a very exciting letter from Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, of the Universal Pictures Company, Inc., in California. They are going to tour the nation's theaters in the near future, and every penny of salary which they receive, will go toward the purchase of a bomber. That is a goodly sum for two people to earn. I wish them luck and know we shall be most grateful to them for whatever they accomplish.

Day by day people keep asking me for jobs. People I know, who have jobs, are always in demand to do some new one, or to take on a little more than they are already doing. I suppose this means that when one has proved his capacity, he is in constant demand. Very few of us have the courage to try a new person, which, perhaps, we had better begin to do.

Shirtwaist Design for Larger Figures

By Lillian Mae.

For everyday wear the simple shirtwaister is ideal—especially on larger figures! Pattern 4952 by Lillian Mae is the ideal design because the front buttoning is both practical and slimming, too, and the prettily scalloped collar and cuffs add a touch of femininity. Note how the optional pockets are scalloped to match. For figure flattery try a "vitamin print" with collar and cuffs of gay contrast.

Pattern 4952 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 1/4 yards 35-inch fabric and 5-8 yard contrast.

Send 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly name, address and style number.

Just 10 cents more brings our Spring Pattern Book, brimful of original, smart styles that are easy for even beginners to make. Dressy and tailored wear; smart fashions for morning, noon and night.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Pleading Will Do Little to Change Man

By Dixie George.

My husband and I have been married a year. He is a good-looking, husky guy and of course I love him better than life. But here is my problem: He loves an other girl better than he does me. He has told me so and proves it by going to see her all the time. There is no use at all. How can I get him to write me from camp? How can I win his love? He is stubborn and will not accept love or give it. He has always been petted by his mother. I began a business course, but have had to stop because of the baby. I can not destroy the baby, although he wanted me to. I will be on the mercy of the people later on.

HUSBAND WORRIES. I think for the good of yourself as well as your child you should put this man out of your life, which, after all, is about the only thing you can do under the circumstances and the way he has treated you. A man such as this man is not worthy of your love and affection, let alone the worry you have over him. There is not a thing you can do to win him back, as far as words are concerned, for I think from what you tell me he has done to you, is reason enough to believe that he is beyond understanding you or even changing toward you. You have just made a bad mistake in a husband and there is nothing that can be done at this time but wait.

Do not think of ending it all and do not think of doing anything to destroy the child.

As for his taking care of you, it is his moral duty, but whether he will consider it so, no one can tell. There is no way you can make him send you any part of his pay in the Army, nor is there any way you can make him write to you. It is a little late now, to try to reform him and make him over. With the baby on the way, he should treat you better, but the chances are that he will go on away and pay no attention to you at all. Especially so, if he admits being in love with another woman. I do not advise divorce from him now. If you will be forced to get one, wait until after the baby comes. It will be far better to let the baby come into the world to parents who are not divorced.

Some Helps in Counting The Vitamins in Your Diet

By Dr. William Brady.

Every little while some one purports to speak with authority asserts that it is not necessary to take vitamins if you have a well-balanced diet, including reasonable amounts of fresh vegetables, fresh fruits, milk, eggs, greens, etc. These foods, if you eat enough of them every day, will provide all the vitamins one requires.

There is a catch in that suggestion. The catch is that no one with an ordinary appetite or capacity for such "protective" foods can eat enough of them to get the vitamins required to maintain good health. In other words, no one's daily menu of specimen diet giving the amounts of the "protective" foods one should eat in order to get the amounts of the various vitamins one requires.

Here is an estimate of the daily requirements of the healthy adult—that is, the amount of each essential vitamin required to prevent actual manifestations of deficiency disease. These figures represent the average of several recognized authorities.

Vitamin A, 5,000 units daily. Vitamin B1, 600 units daily. Vitamin C, 500 units daily. Vitamin D, 1,500 units daily. Remember, these are the average minimum requirements.

A quart of milk contains about 2,000 units of Vitamin A. The yolk of an egg contains 825 units. Two tablespoons of carrot contain 1,000 units. A teaspoonful of butter about 100 units. A teaspoonful of liver oil about 2,500 units.

Most Americans get more than half of their calories from wheat and sugar. Americans a hundred years ago did, too, but from the undenatured wheat flour and sugar or molasses they used they got also about 600 units of vitamin B1 (and proportionate amounts of all the other entities in the natural vitamin B complex). Americans today get from the refined white flour and refined white sugar that yield over half of their daily calories only about 50 units of vitamin B1 (and proportionate amounts of the other entities).

A slice of bread made of wheat meal or flour from which nothing has been removed (the sort of flour our great-grandparents used when they took their wheat to the grist mill) contains about 30 units of B1 (and the other entities of the B complex). A slice of white bread such as most people eat today contains about three units of B1. One-fourth cupful of rolled oats cooked as a cereal contains about 27 units of B1. A glass of milk contains 32 units. An egg contains 15 units, nearly all in the yolk. Two tablespoonsful of wheat germ contains 180 to 200 units. Thirty peanuts contain 70 to 75 units. One-half cupful of dried beans or dried peas cooked contains about 90 units—prolonged cooking, necessary to make beans and peas most palatable, destroys some of their vitamin B and some of it is dissolved out in the water if they are cooked by boiling. As these are among the richest food sources of B it is obvious that few individuals in this country today get enough vitamin B to maintain good health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Postcards Do Not Comply. Kindly send to address below your literature on . . . (B. H.)

Answer—Correspondents who expect a reply must provide stamped envelope bearing the correct address. Dr. Brady has a good deal of bowling to attend to and furthermore he is always tight, so far as paying postage on his advice goes.

Arrival of 84th Pipe. Keep up the good work of speaking against the evils of tobacco. (Mrs. G. B.)

Answer—I will, on the one hand. On the other hand, I must acknowledge here receipt of my 84th pipe, for the kind friend who sent it remains so far anonymous. It is a grand pipe to have on hand when a fellow caddies a pipeful from an unwary friend—a fill just about empties an ordinary pouch. Remember, now, folks, I'm Ol' Doc Brady. What I do has no connection with what I do with what is best for young persons.

Nervous Collapse. Recently suffered nervous collapse and coronary thrombosis. (Mrs. H. D.)

Answer—The "nervous collapse" is a kind of camouflage. Coronary thrombosis is at least serious enough to leave entirely to the advice of the attending physician.

How A Housewife Can Save On Foods

By Ida Jean Kain.

When the New York State Dietetic Association asked Governor Lehman to proclaim a "Nutrition Fortnight," a hasty glance at the calendar disclosed that there was only one week left. All the others had already been named for something.

The same full schedule is confronting the entire country. So if we are to get in a national "Clean Up Your Plate Week," it will have to be sandwiched in with the "Spoon Stirring Week" to utilize that last grain of sugar, and the "Drink More Milk Week" and the "Eat an Apple a Day Week."

And if our week is to be successful, the credit will belong to the homemakers who put it across. Their good cooking will keep food from being wasted. Food that is attractively served is promptly eaten up. No urging is needed when there is a tempting blend of color, texture and flavor and the hot dishes are served piping hot and the cold dishes cold.

Meat is too valuable a food to be left on the plate—but it will be if it is tough. All the inexpensive cuts should be cooked slowly until they are tender. In fact, all the protein foods should be cooked either at a low or a moderately low temperature to prevent toughening. These include eggs, cheese, milk and poultry, as well as the inexpensive cuts of meat.

When it comes to vegetables, flavor is everything and time is the essence. Over-cooked vegetables are tasteless and no amount of coaxing will persuade the family to eat them. Besides, over-cooking kills some of the vitamins and minerals that make them nutritionally valuable. Try this timetable for vegetable cooking: String beans, eight minutes; peas, from 10 to 12 minutes; fresh lima beans, from 12 to 15 minutes; broccoli, from 15 to 20 minutes. The exact time required varies with the age of the vegetable, but it should not be cooked more than the maximum number of minutes.

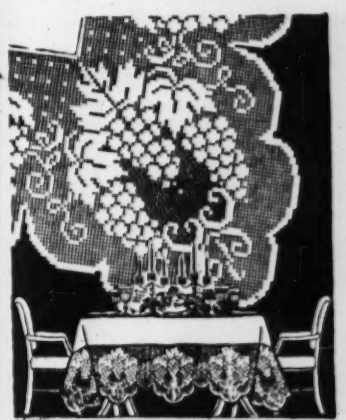

To save food and vitamins, be careful to peel all vegetables this instead of whacking away a good portion. The water, either from canned or fresh vegetables, should never be thrown away. And soda should never, never be added.

In a food saving plan, the family must do their part. They should realize that it is wasteful to take larger servings than can be eaten, and that it is not only wasteful, but makes for poor nutrition to put aside part of the main course to leave room for dessert. Your dietitian.

Jane Bair Will Be Married On Parents' Wedding Date

••• MARCH 28, the date selected by lovely Jane Bair and Robert Yarbrough for their wedding, bears unusual significance, for Jane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bair, were married 26 years ago on that date at 5 o'clock, which is the hour chosen for the Bair Yarbrough ceremony.

Jane's great-uncle, Rev. J. T. Eakes, of Calhoun, who officiated at the wedding of her parents, will also "tie the knot" for her and Bob. Though the former Lula Ledbetter and A. E. Bair were married at the home of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Ledbetter, in Cedartown, this month's bride and groom will speak their vows at St. Mark Methodist church here.

Exquisite rosepoint lace which trimmed Mrs. E. K. Bryan's wedding gown, will be loaned to her niece to grace her bridal robes of ivory satin. For her marriage, Jane will also don the illusion tulle veil belonging to one of her bridesmaids, Julia West (Mrs. Earl) Horton, of Macon. In addition to Julia, Jane will be attended by Anna Wadley and Nelle Cheek as bridesmaids, and Rowena Graves, of Cedartown, as maid of honor.

Bob's best man will be his father, R. E. Yarbrough, of Charlotte. The ushers will be Frank Potts, of Salisbury, N. C.; T. C. Howell, of Charlotte; Carl Osteen, of Glyn, Mass.; Owen Tiffin and Earl Horton, of Macon.

Mr. Bair will give his attractive young daughter in marriage. And while the wedding guests assemble, Irene Leftwich (Mrs. Robert O.) Harris will present a program of music.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Bair will entertain at a reception at their home on Amsterdam avenue honoring members of the Bair Yarbrough bridal party, the immediate families, and out-of-town guests.

••• BRIDE-ELECT Edith Stover plans to depart next Friday for San Antonio, Texas, where she will visit Lieutenant and Mrs. C. E. Selph until her marriage to William Charles McFee, who is training at Brooks Field, Mrs. Selph, you recall, is the former Hilda Callahan, of Atlanta, and her husband is stationed at Randolph Field.

Edith and Bill plan to be married the latter part of March, or rather, as soon as she receives a commission as lieutenant in the Army Air Corps. The wedding, which will take place at the post chapel, will be performed by the chaplain at Brooks Field. Grace McFee, the groom-elect's sister, will be Edith's maid of honor, and only attendant. Grace will leave the latter part of the month for San Antonio, as will her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McFee, and Edith's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Stover.

••• CONGRATULATIONS are in order today for Mr. and Mrs. George J. Sharkey, who are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. The beloved couple moved here two years ago from Evanston, Ill., and resides at 3542 Kingsboro road. Mrs. Sharkey is the former Miss Theresa Shields, and her marriage to Mr. Sharkey took place in St. Louis, Mo.

They have a daughter, Mrs. Ralph M. Bohn, and a granddaughter, Georgia Bohn, whom they plan to have with them this evening when they celebrate their anniversary at a family dinner party at a local club.

••• WHEN ANNE COX became the bride of Lieutenant Hamilton McKenzie Williams Jr. Saturday, she wore a good-luck coin in the heel of each slipper. One coin was the silver dime given her many years ago by the late John D. Rockefeller, and which she has kept for years just to wear at her wedding. In the other shoe was a gold half dollar, which was among the first minted after the gold rush in California in the middle of the last century. It was presented to Anne's great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Anne Somers Gilchrist, of Nashville.

Alabaster urns filled with calla lilies flanked the altar, which was centered with an arrangement of bride's roses. Single brass candlesticks holding lighted white tapers were placed at either end of the altar. Mrs. Lila Belle Brooks, organist, presented the music.

Beach Mead Chenoweth gave his pretty young daughter in marriage, and Lewis Oehmig, of Houston, Tex., acted as best man for his brother.

The ushers included Bill Oehmig, Dan Oehmig, both of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dr. Beach Chenoweth, of Baltimore, Md.; James Chenoweth, Lieutenant W. A. Chenoweth Jr. and Ensign Barney Ireland.

Miss Mary Ilges Hollis, of Columbus, Ga., was her cousin's maid of honor, and Mrs. Lewis Johnson, of Birmingham, was the matron of honor. They were gowning alike in models of spring green faille, made with long torsos and full skirts. They carried cascade bouquets of calla lilies that fell in graceful sprays to the hems of their skirts.

The bride was exquisitely lovely in her gown of antique white tulle. Styled along princess lines, the dress featured a row of rosepoint lace, matching lace edging the wrists of the long sleeves. The skirt fell into a long graceful train. Her veil of duchess lace over illusion tulle was caught to a halo of rosepoint lace. She carried

Whisky - Laden Car Seized by DeKalb Police

Chase Ends When Rear Tires Are Shot From Fleeing Car.

DeKalb county police late Saturday night seized 125 gallons of non-tax-paid whisky after a wild 85-mile-an-hour chase that ended only when both rear tires had been shot from the fleeing liquor car.

Officers C. M. Cloud and C. L. Vischer said the chase started on Buford highway near Lawson General hospital when they noticed the other automobile heavily loaded in rear. Both cars raced for about four miles out. Buford highway before one of the officers finally shot out the rear tires in the liquor car. Even then, the fleeing auto continued about half a mile on the rims before crashing into an embankment.

The officers arrested one of the alleged occupants, Glenn Richard Law, 20, of Dawsonville, on a
